

CALL FOR PAPERS

SPECIAL ISSUE:

DIVERSITY IN PHILOSOPHY

We are soliciting papers for a special issue of Symposion: Theoretical and Applied Inquiries in Philosophy and Social Sciences, for publication in November 2020, on the broad topic of diversity in philosophy. Symposion is a fully open-access journal, which we hope will mean that the contributions will reach a wide audience including those with no or limited access to subscription-only journals. The special issue will be co-edited by Helen Beebee and Anne-Marie McCallion.

Contributions can be on any issue related to diversity in philosophy, and from any philosophical perspective or tradition (analytic, continental, history of philosophy, work based on empirical findings, pedagogical and curriculum issues, etc.). Papers should not normally be more than 8,000 words (including bibliography), although we will consider longer papers (absolute maximum: 12,000 words) if the range or complexity of the subject-matter demands it.

Please submit your paper, prepared for anonymous review, to helen.beebee@manchester.ac.uk by 30 April 2020. Do let one of us know if you have any questions.
