

Information about Authors

Alex Blum is Professor Emeritus of Philosophy at Bar-Ilan University, Israel. He founded, with Asa Kasher, the journal Philosophia which they co-edited during its first five years of its existence. He wrote two logic texts which were published in Hebrew covering much of elementary logic and published over 70 papers and pieces in philosophical journals. Among them: Analysis, British Journal of the Philosophy of Science, Dialectica, Philosophical Studies, Nous, Notre Dame Journal of the Philosophy of Science, Skepsis, Philosophical Investigations, Organon F, The Journal of Value Inquiry, Logique et Analyse, and Iyyun. His last papers include: "Can it be that Tully=Cicero?". Symposion. Theoretical and Applied Inquiries in Philosophy and Social Sciences. 4, 2(2017): 149-150, "An Aspect of Necessity". Metalogicon. New Series. 1: 1(2016): 31-6, "The Hidden Future". Symposion. Theoretical and Applied Inquiries in Philosophy and Social Sciences. 5, 1(2018): 9-10. Contact: alex.blum@biu.ac.il.

Curran F. Douglass has a PhD in Philosophy from the University of Kansas – Lawrence (2004) and taught in the U.S. Army Signal School, at Ft. Monmouth, New Jersey. Prior to becoming a philosopher, he was an engineer specializing in automatic control. Most recently, he authored a book titled Rationality, Control and Freedom: Making Sense of Human Freedom, published by Rowman & Littlefield/Fairleigh Dickinson University Press (2015) – which offers a compatibilist solution to the determinism vs. freedom problem. He is also author or coauthor of other books and papers. Contact: currandoug@gmail.com.

Jude Edeh is a lecturer at the Institute of Philosophy, Leibniz University, Hannover. He received his PhD from the University of Muenster, Germany with a dissertation on "Moral Objectivity and the Psychology of Motivation". His current teaching and research interests are metaethics, moral psychology, applied ethics, epistemology, theories of emotions, social and political philosophy. Contact: ndu.edeh@philos.uni-hannover.de.

Maksym Karpovets is Associate Professor at the National University of Ostroh Academy. He received his PhD in Philosophy of Culture and Philosophical Anthropology, publishing a book titled City as a World of Human Existence: The Philosophical and Anthropological Analysis (in Ukrainian). The focus of his research is on social philosophy, philosophy of culture, performative studies, and anthropology. He is currently doing a postdoctoral research on the border of social philosophy and performative studies, analyzing how society arises and develops as a cultural performance. Contact: maksym.karpovets@oa.edu.ua.

Symposion

Anna Kawalec is an adjunct professor at the Department of Epistemology, Faculty of Philosophy, John Paul II Catholic University of Lublin (Poland). She received her MA in Polish philology, specializing in the history and theory of theatre, and her PhD in philosophy with a thesis titled Theatre as a Personal Sign of Human Being (in Polish). Her most recent Habilitation-book (2016) is titled Person and Nexus: Alfred Gell's Anthropological Theory of Art (in Polish). Her recent research focuses on applied anthropology, aesthetics of performance, art and the problem of human agency. She edited two volumes and published 80 papers, book chapters and reviews. She is a member of the American Society in Aesthetics, Performance Philosophy (UK), Theatre and Performance Research Association (UK), Polish Society for Aesthetics, Polish Society for Cultural Studies. Contact: kawalec@kul.pl.

Rajesh Sampath is currently Associate Professor of the Philosophy of Justice, Rights, and Social Change at Brandeis University. He completed his PhD at the University of California, Irvine in the humanities where he studied under the French philosopher Jacques Derrida, the founder of deconstruction. His areas of specialization centered on the philosophy of history, historical time and epochal shifts. Subsequently, he did a postdoctoral fellowship at the University of California, Berkeley and a D.A.A.D. research scientist fellowship in Germany where he published articles in continental European philosophy. Contact: rsampath@brandeis.edu.

Dmytro Shevchuk is Professor at the National University of Ostroh Academy. He received his PhD in Philosophy at John Paul II Lublin Catholic University. The title of his PhD thesis is Gustav Shpet: the Philosophical Person and Methodological Ideas (in Polish). His habilitation-book is titled The Sense and Limits of the Political: A Philosophical Interpretation (2014). In his researches he focuses on political philosophy, hermeneutics, methodological issues of social sciences and humanities. Contact: dmytro.shevchuk@oa.edu.ua.