

Information about Authors

Filip Čukljević is Research Associate at the University of Belgrade – Faculty of Philosophy (Čika Ljubina 18-20, 11000 Belgrade, Serbia). His current research interests include the themes of social and self-transformation in Friedrich Nietzsche and Karl Marx, especially the idea of life as a work of art. He has previously written on topics in theory of knowledge and philosophy of language. His most recent publications are Čukljević, Filip. 2021. “Why Rip Matters? Reexamining the Problem of Cognitive Dynamics.” Logos & Episteme, An International Journal of Epistemology 12 (2): 153-173 and Čukljević, Filip. 2021. “McDowell and Brandom on Observational Knowledge.” Filozofia 76 (6): 423-435. Contact: filipcukljevic@gmail.com.

Arnold Cusmariu is an analytic philosopher with a PhD from Brown University. He has published on metaphysics, epistemology, logic, the philosophy of language and aesthetics. Articles are available online at <https://www.researchgate.net/profile/Arnold-Cusmariu>. His book Logic for Kids will be out June 30 and can be pre-ordered at Amazon and Barnes & Noble. Contact: bravo323@gmail.com.

Yuval Eytan is a philosophy, sociology, and political communication lecturer at the School of Government and Society of the Tel Aviv-Yaffo Academic College and the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences of the Kibbutzim College of Education, Technology and the Arts. His doctoral dissertation, received from Tel Aviv University, addressed the complex relationship between authenticity and happiness in modern philosophy. Contact: yuvaleytan@gmail.com.

Mubarak Hussain is a Ph.D. fellow in the Department of Humanities and Social Sciences, Indian Institute of Technology Dharwad (IIT Dharwad), Karnataka, India. His research area is the Ethics of Artificial Intelligence (Ethics of AI). He has finished his MA and MPhil in Philosophy from the University of Hyderabad, Telangana, India. He has presented research papers at various conferences. His research interest lies in Applied Ethics, Epistemology, and Indian Philosophy. Recently he presented a co-authored paper entitled “Speech Act Theory and Ethics of Speech Processing as Distinct Stages: The Ethics of Collecting, Contextualizing and the Releasing of (Speech) Data” at the 2023 IEEE International Symposium on Ethics in Engineering, Science, and Technology, Ethics - 2023: Ethics in the Global Innovation Helix, (IEEE ETHICS-2023), May 18-20, 2023, College of Engineering, Purdue University, West Lafayette, Indiana, USA. The presented paper will be published in the conference proceedings in IEEE Xplore. Contact: hussainmubarak51@gmail.com.

Symposium

Rajesh Sampath, PhD, is Associate Professor of the Philosophy of Justice, Rights, and Social Change at Brandeis University. His most recent articles and book chapters are on major continental European philosophers, particularly Hegel, Heidegger, and Derrida. He has also published articles on comparative philosophical dialogues utilizing major modern continental European philosophers' works to critically deconstruct global systems of injustice, inequality, and oppression, for example structural racism in the West and Global South caste systems. Contact: rsampath@brandeis.edu.

Howard Sankey is Professor of Philosophy in the School of Historical and Philosophical Studies at the University of Melbourne (Australia). A native of southern California, he completed a PhD in History and Philosophy of Science at Melbourne after undergraduate studies in philosophy at the University of Otago in New Zealand. He has held visiting positions at the Universities of Pittsburgh, Hannover, Hyderabad, Nancy and Louvain-la-Neuve. He has published on the incommensurability of scientific theories, epistemic relativism and scientific realism. In recent years, his attention has turned to issues in epistemology and metaphysics, particularly as they relate to the nature of objectivity. Contact: chs@unimelb.edu.au.